

Students won't remember every lesson.

But they'll remember how they helped make six million visible.

A creative educational experience that transforms the number of six million Jewish Holocaust victims from an abstract statistic into a personal act of remembrance. Through coloring and reflection, students engage meaningfully with history and contribute to our global exhibition.

HOW IT WORKS

- Students learn about the meaning of the project
- Students paint small rectangles, each representing a Jewish life lost in the Holocaust.
- All pages are combined into a global artwork
- The school is part of an international memorial

SEE THE EXPERIENCE IN ACTION

Watch the 2-minute video

Interested in bringing the Six Million Project to your school?

For information and pricing:
Liora Blum | Founder, The Six Million Project
info@sixmillionproject.org

SCHOOL PARTICIPATION PACKAGE

- Introductory video presentation
- Printable participation pages
- Teacher guide with discussion prompts
- Submission to the global artwork
- Commemorative poster of your school's contribution
- Optional: Live workshop with Liora Blum

The Six Million Project is an international collaborative art initiative created by Israeli artist and graphic designer Liora Blum.

www.sixmillionproject.org